Polly loved pizza. She loved the smell of pizza and the taste of pizza. She loved the sound of pizza when it was cooking. But Polly had a problem. Her parents never changed the toppings on their pizzas. They always had tomato, cheese, and onion. So, Polly decided to make a "P pizza." First, she looked in the fridge. There were lots of tomatoes but she couldn't put tomatoes on a P pizza. She didn't take the tomatoes but she took some potatoes. In the cupboard, there was some pasta and in the fruit bowl, she found pears, plums, and a pineapple. "Perfect!" Polly said. She cut the toppings and put them on the pizza. Then she put the pizza in the oven. She was excited! Later, when the family was sitting at the kitchen table, her parents asked, "What does this pizza have on it?" "It has food beginning with the letter P on it," Polly said. "It's Polly's perfect P Pizza!" Then Polly tasted the pizza. Do you think it was perfect?
