

55 Introduction to international law

International Law (or Public International Law) consists of rules and principles which govern the relations and dealings of nations with each other. It concerns itself only with questions of rights between several nations or nations and the citizens or subjects of other nations. In contrast, Private International Law deals with controversies between private persons, natural or juridical, arising out of situations having significant relationship to more than one nation. In recent years the line between public and private international law has become increasingly uncertain, because issues of private international law may also involve issues of public international law, and vice versa.

Look at the following legal areas and classify them into Public International Law or Private International Law.

adoption	arms control	asylum	contractual relations
divorce	environmental issues		human rights
immigration	international crime		maritime law
	piracy	war crimes

Public International Law	Private International Law
environmental issues	adoption

Immigration is the movement of people to a new country; emigration is the movement of people from a country.
