SECTION A: Sequencing

1) Read the story. Then answer the questions. This story has gotten mixed up. You can fix it by writing numbers in the boxes to show what happened. (___/12 marks)

The Grumpy Backpack

Joe's backpack was having a bad day. First, Joe stuffed so many books and supplies into it that Joe had trouble zipping it shut. Then Joe tugged on the zipper so hard that it broke, so Joe had to go to school with his things hanging out of his broken backpack. Then Joe tossed the backpack into his locker, instead of hanging it up, so his backpack had to spend half the day in the locker standing on his head. "No one appreciates how hard I work," the backpack thought to himself. When Joe opened his locker before lunch, the backpack slipped one of his straps under the door so that it wouldn't quite close. Then, when the bell rang, and the hall grew quiet, the backpack pushed open the locker door and crept out. He tiptoed all the way down the hall and was about to walk out the front door when a hand swooped down and lifted him into the air.

"What's this?" a cheerful voice said. "Someone is going to be looking for you." And a few moments later, the backpack found himself tossed into the Lost and Found box!

For each set of story events, put an X next to the one that happens first.

- ___ The zipper on the backpack breaks.
- ___ Joe tosses the backpack into his locker.
- ___ The backpack sneaks out of the locker and down the hall.
- ___ Joe stuffs too many things into his backpack.
- ___ The backpack gets tossed into the Lost and Found.
- ___ The backpack props the locker door open with a strap.
