Vacation in Taiwan

24 hours on Yang Ming Mountain

Yang Ming Mountain is a mountain outside the city of Taipei in Taiwan. Most visitors say their visit to the mountain is the best part of their trip to Taiwan. Yang Ming Mountain is actually a volcano. The volcano is not active now, but you may experience an earthquake during your visit, because Taiwan is in an active earthquake zone. North Taiwan has a warm climate, but in the winter it can be really cold, so you might need to bring warm clothes with you. Between June and September, you might experience a typhoon.

Morning

In the morning, we will meet at the Yang Ming Visitors' Center, and there will be guides to answer your questions about the mountain and its history. In spring, the mountain is covered in flowers and you can see cherry blossom. In summer, you might see the famous chestnut tiger butterflies.

Afternoon

There are many walking trails on the mountain. You may want to take the JinBao Li History tour, where you will see beautiful bridges and temples. There are also many Buddhist monasteries and temples, so you will probably see some Buddhist monks on your walk.

Evening

In the evening there are two options. We might visit a hot spring so you can relax in the naturally heated hot water, or we might go to one of the many restaurants on the mountain and try some of the local food and look at the wonderful night views of Taipei City.
