Think about the things a hospital porter does. Then read the article about William O'Neill

William O'Neill

I'm the Head Porter in this hospital. What do I do? Well, I run the place.

Porters do more than just push food trolleys around the hospital. We transport patients by wheelchair or stretcher from the wards to Radiology or Physiotherapy and back again. We remove dead bodies to the mortuary, we lift and carry heavy equipment and furniture, and we dispose of all the waste. Each hospital bed produces 4.5 kilos of waste every day. We collect it each day and take it away for recycling.

We deliver the post all over the hospital and bring letters for patients – that's a very important thing. As we move around the place, we take files, samples, and specimens from here to there and back again. Last year I walked 1,800 kilometres!

To do all these things a porter must be fit, be able to think clearly in an emergency, and be polite and friendly. Next time you are waiting for a porter to answer your call, please be patient. He will be with you as soon as he can.

2 Decide if these sentences are true (T) or false (F).

- 1 Porters only push food trolleys around. ____
- 2 They move patients around the hospital. ____
- 3 Porters take dead patients from the wards. ____
- 4 Each ward makes 4.5 kilos of waste a day. ____
- 5 The porters destroy all the waste. ____
- 6 Porters give the patients their mail. ____
