

Will and Would

A modal auxiliary verb is used to modify the mood of a verb. Here is a list of the modal auxiliary verbs:

Will:

"Will" is used when you are volunteering to do something in the future, or when you are deciding at the time of speaking to do something in the future. The negative of will is "will not" or the contraction "won't" (See "Using will and going" in the future tense folder of the advanced section of this website for more information on "will").

Example: I will cook dinner.

In this example "will" is used to volunteer to cook dinner in the future.

Example: I think I will go to the beach this Sunday.

In this example "will" is used to express a future action that is being decided upon at the time of speaking.
