National Dishes. Ukraine.

Borsch is a Ukrainian national dish that is also very popular in Russia and Belarus. It is so popular that many Russians consider it their national dish too. But in fact, the Russian Borsch is cooked a little differently.

It is a very delicious soup that people eat cold or hot depending on the season.

Borsch contains meat, tomatoes or tomato juice, beetroot, and vegetables such as carrots, beans, cabbage, potatoes, parsnips, celery, onions and garlic.

It usually has beef but people can also make borsch using vegetables only.

People usually eat it with bread. In Ukraine special white buns (often with garlic) called «pampushki» are quite popular.

In all three countries people usually eat borsch with sour cream (called «smetana»)
