Name of the festival

The festival that my family and I look forward to is the Hari Raya Aidil Fitri. It is to mark the end of the fasting month of Ramadan

Introduction : a short explanation about the festival

A week before the celebration, my family and I would get ready for it. Even though everyone is fasting, we work hard to prepare various food. We will do some spring-cleaning a few days before the special day.

Use of the present tense

On the Hari Raya, we would wear our new traditional clothes to go to the mosque for a special prayer. Then, we will visit as many family members as we can. My relatives and I take the chance to enjoy various traditional meals that often come out during the festival like the mouth-watering, chicken or meat 'rendang'. There would also be modern and traditional delicious biscuits.

The tone is semi-formal

I think the festival is best celebrated with family and friends. It really shows the true Malaysian spirit.
