

Unit 5 I Have a Dream 課本單字卷

01. There has always been plenty of d within Ben's family. His family members fight all the time.
02. An audience of two thousand enjoyed a performance of Beethoven's s by the Asian Youth Orchestra.
03. Sadly, the Tibetan people have been seriously o by the PRC government for decades. Several massacres have even taken place there.
04. Because of her critical comments about the government, the writer was forced into e until her death.
05. Tens of thousands of people gathered in the square to d against the war in the Middle East.
06. A v rumor about Kyle copying from other songwriters spread rapidly among the music industry.
07. The chemical plant exploded, and everything in it went up in f.
08. The butterfly must undergo the t from a caterpillar to a butterfly before it can reproduce.
09. Ms. Ross taught us about the g history of our country, and we felt proud of our homeland
10. In the early morning hours, water in the air usually c into dew, especially in late summer.
11. In doing business, honesty is of the e. That is, business people should never deceive their customers.
12. The curved section of the road is where car accidents happen most frequently, so its straightening becomes a matter of u.
13. The large downtown park serves as an o of calm in the center of the bustling city.
14. The c river looks like a huge blue snake that is lying across the field.
15. The Umbrella Movement in Hong Kong has been credited with helping to protect the l and individual rights of citizens there.
16. Students in my brother's school have to attend a morning (assemble) every Friday; important news is often announced on the occasion.
17. Claire was once harshly scolded by her boss in public, and she regards it as the most (ashamed) moment in her life.
18. That clock stopped last year, but it still works -- it gives the correct time twice a day.
19. The teacher encouraged his students to be brave and their dreams, whatever the dreams might be.
20. Instead of himself when his mother blamed him for the mistake he hadn't made, Frank remained silent.