

Dolly Parton's "Jolene"

Who is the self-poet talking to? What's her name? Can you spell it?

What sorts of things does the self-poet talk about her?

Her beauty Her crimes Her eyes Her skin Her body
Her hair Her smile Her voice Her kiss Her sins

What does she compare each of the items above with?

Her beauty emerald green
Her hair soft like summer rain
Her skin a breath of spring
Her eyes beyond compare
Her smile flaming locks of auburn
Her voice ivory

Match the doer to their deeds:

1. The self-poet	<input type="checkbox"/> Could easily take her man
	<input type="checkbox"/> Means a lot to her
2. Her husband	<input type="checkbox"/> Talks about her in his sleep
	<input type="checkbox"/> Can do nothing to keep from crying
3. Jolene	<input type="checkbox"/> Could have her choice of men
	<input type="checkbox"/> Begs

Let's put the lyrics in the correct order!

Jolene, Jolene, Jolene, Jolene
Oh, I'm you begging of please take man don't my
Jolene, Jolene, Jolene, Jolene
Please take don't him
even you can though
Your is compare beauty beyond
With flaming hair auburn locks of
With skin of green ivory eyes and emerald
Your spring is a breath of smile like
Your rain voice is like soft summer
And , Jolene can compete with you not I
And easily can understand I
How man easily take could my you
But , Jolene know he you means what to me don't He sleep you about in his talks

There's keep nothing to do can I
From , Jolene calls he crying when your name
I have had to talk with you this
My on you happiness depends
And decide , Jolene to do you whatever
And men have your choice you could of
But again I love never could Cause , Jolene the only me for he's one
Jolene, Jolene, Jolene, Jolene
Oh, of you begging I'm
Please, take man don't my
Jolene, Jolene, Jolene, Jolene
Please, him take don't Even can you though
Jolene, Jolene
