Jenny works in a big forest. What does she do there? She studies gorillas.

When Jenny was a little child, she had a strong love for animals and wanted to be a veterinarian, taking care of sick animals.

In 2005, Jenny's first job was in a bookstore. One day, a man, John Smith, and his wife bought books at the bookstore. They told Jenny that they studied gorillas and that they needed someone to help them. Jenny was interested in gorillas, so she agreed to work with the Smiths.

Studying gorillas in the forest was not easy. It rained a lot there. When it did not rain, Jenny went outside to study gorillas. At first, the gorillas were afraid of Jenny. When she walked near them, they walked away. But after two years, Jenny could sit by them, watch them and write about them in a notebook.

Now, Jenny enjoys every moment with the gorillas. She gets to know them more and writes a newspaper column about them. In this way, she can help the world understand gorillas better.

Jenny is happy that she has found her dream job.

Can You Cook?

by Amy Chen

Can you cook?
What can you make?
I love cooking.
What about you?
In the kitchen,
I am a magician.
I cook fish, meat, and vegetables
And make different mouth-watering dishes.
My family love all the dishes I make.
They say they are great.
Why do I cook?
My parents do not have time to do it.
We used to eat out almost every night.
One day,
I told my parents
I wanted to learn to cook.
My parents liked the idea.
They bought some cookbooks for me.
That was how I began to cook.
I can cook.
It is so much fun.
Cooking is a way to show my love for my family.
I like to see the joy on their face
When we have dinner together every night.
