

UNIT 10: FIRST CONDITIONAL

We use the first conditional to talk about likely situations / actions.

Conditional clause	Main clause (= future result)
if + present simple	will / won't + infinitive
if we run ,	we'll catch the bus.
if we don't run ,	we won't catch the bus.

The conditional clause can start or finish the sentence:
 If you work hard, you'll pass your exam. (There is a comma after the conditional clause.)
 You'll pass your exam if you work hard. (There is no comma after the main clause.)

We can use the first conditional to talk about the future, but we use the present tense after if:

✓ If you work hard, you'll pass your exam.

✗ If you will work hard, you'll pass your exam.

Complete the first conditional sentences with the correct form of the verbs in brackets.

- If I (see) your best friend, I (tell) him to text you.
