

Ways of Reproduction in Plants

Plants need to reproduce to avoid extinction.
Plants can reproduce in various ways.

Plants that produce
fruits reproduce
through

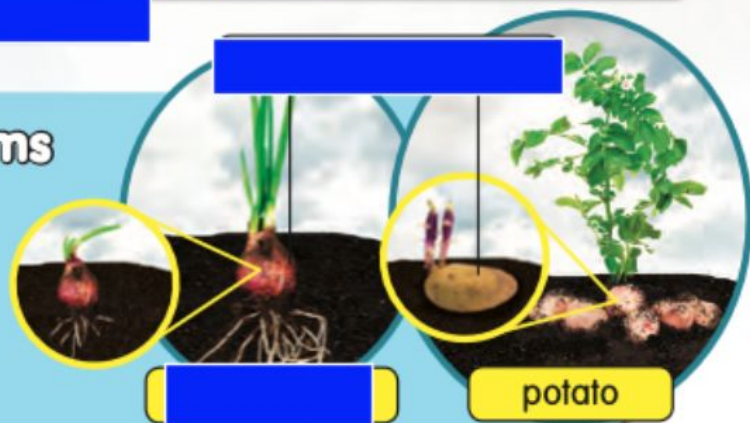

Suckers

are young plants that grow
their parent plants.
They can grow into
plants.

Underground stems

are the parts of plants
that will grow into new plants when planted.

5.1.1

TEACHER'S NOTES

- Examples of underground stems are rhizomes, corns, tubers, and bulbs.