STUDENT A	STUDENT B
Situation 1
You live in a cottage, and your neighbour is a hoarder. His yard is full of rubbish, old furniture, car parts and other things. It looks awful and smells even worse. You can't stand it anymore.	You live in a countryside and you never throw things away. You are sure that they are not rubbish and that you need them all. You can't understand why your neighbours are angry.
Situation 2
You want to have a wonderful career and work hard to get it. You hope to be promoted soon and you can't understand why your boyfriend/girlfriend is angry.	Your boyfriend/girlfriend is a workaholic. You live together, but he/she spends almost all the time working, he/she even talks only about work.
Situation 3
Your son/daughter is addicted to video games. He/she spends hours playing. Today you suggested going for a walk together, but he/she refused and is now playing a new game.	You are 15 years old. You have just downloaded a new game and are fighting monsters. You can't understand why your mom/dad is worried.
Situation 4
Your friend has come to see you. You have some good tequila and you are offering your friend a drink. He/she looks worried and says "No". You say "As you wish" and fill your glass only.	You think your friend has problems with alcohol. You see him/her every day having a drink. You have come to visit him/her, and there are some empty bottles in the kitchen. Now your friend is offering you some tequila.
Situation 5
Last month you gave your friend $100, and he didn't return it. A week ago he took $50 more from you. It's all because of his gambling addiction. Now he is calling and asking you for $2000. You are shocked and angry.	You have lost all your money playing in a casino. Now you have to pay $2000 more, but you have nothing in your wallet. You are calling your best friend and asking for help.
