

Hares and Rabbits

Hares and rabbits might look the same at first, but they are not. Hares have longer ears than rabbits. When a hare is born, it can see while a rabbit can't. When a hare is born it has fur, but a rabbit doesn't; its fur will grow later.

Rabbits and hares have different homes. Hares make their nests on the ground, so they run to get away from danger. Hares run very very fast.

On the other hand, rabbits dig holes in the ground for their nests, so they can dive in when there's danger.

The next time you think you see a rabbit, take a closer look. It might be a hare.

© Copyright 2011, www.sparklebox.co.uk

Write H if the sentence tells about a hare, or R if it tells about a rabbit.

1. I can't see when I'm born. _____
2. I can run very fast. _____
3. My home is below the ground. _____
4. I am born with fur. _____
5. I make my home on the ground. _____

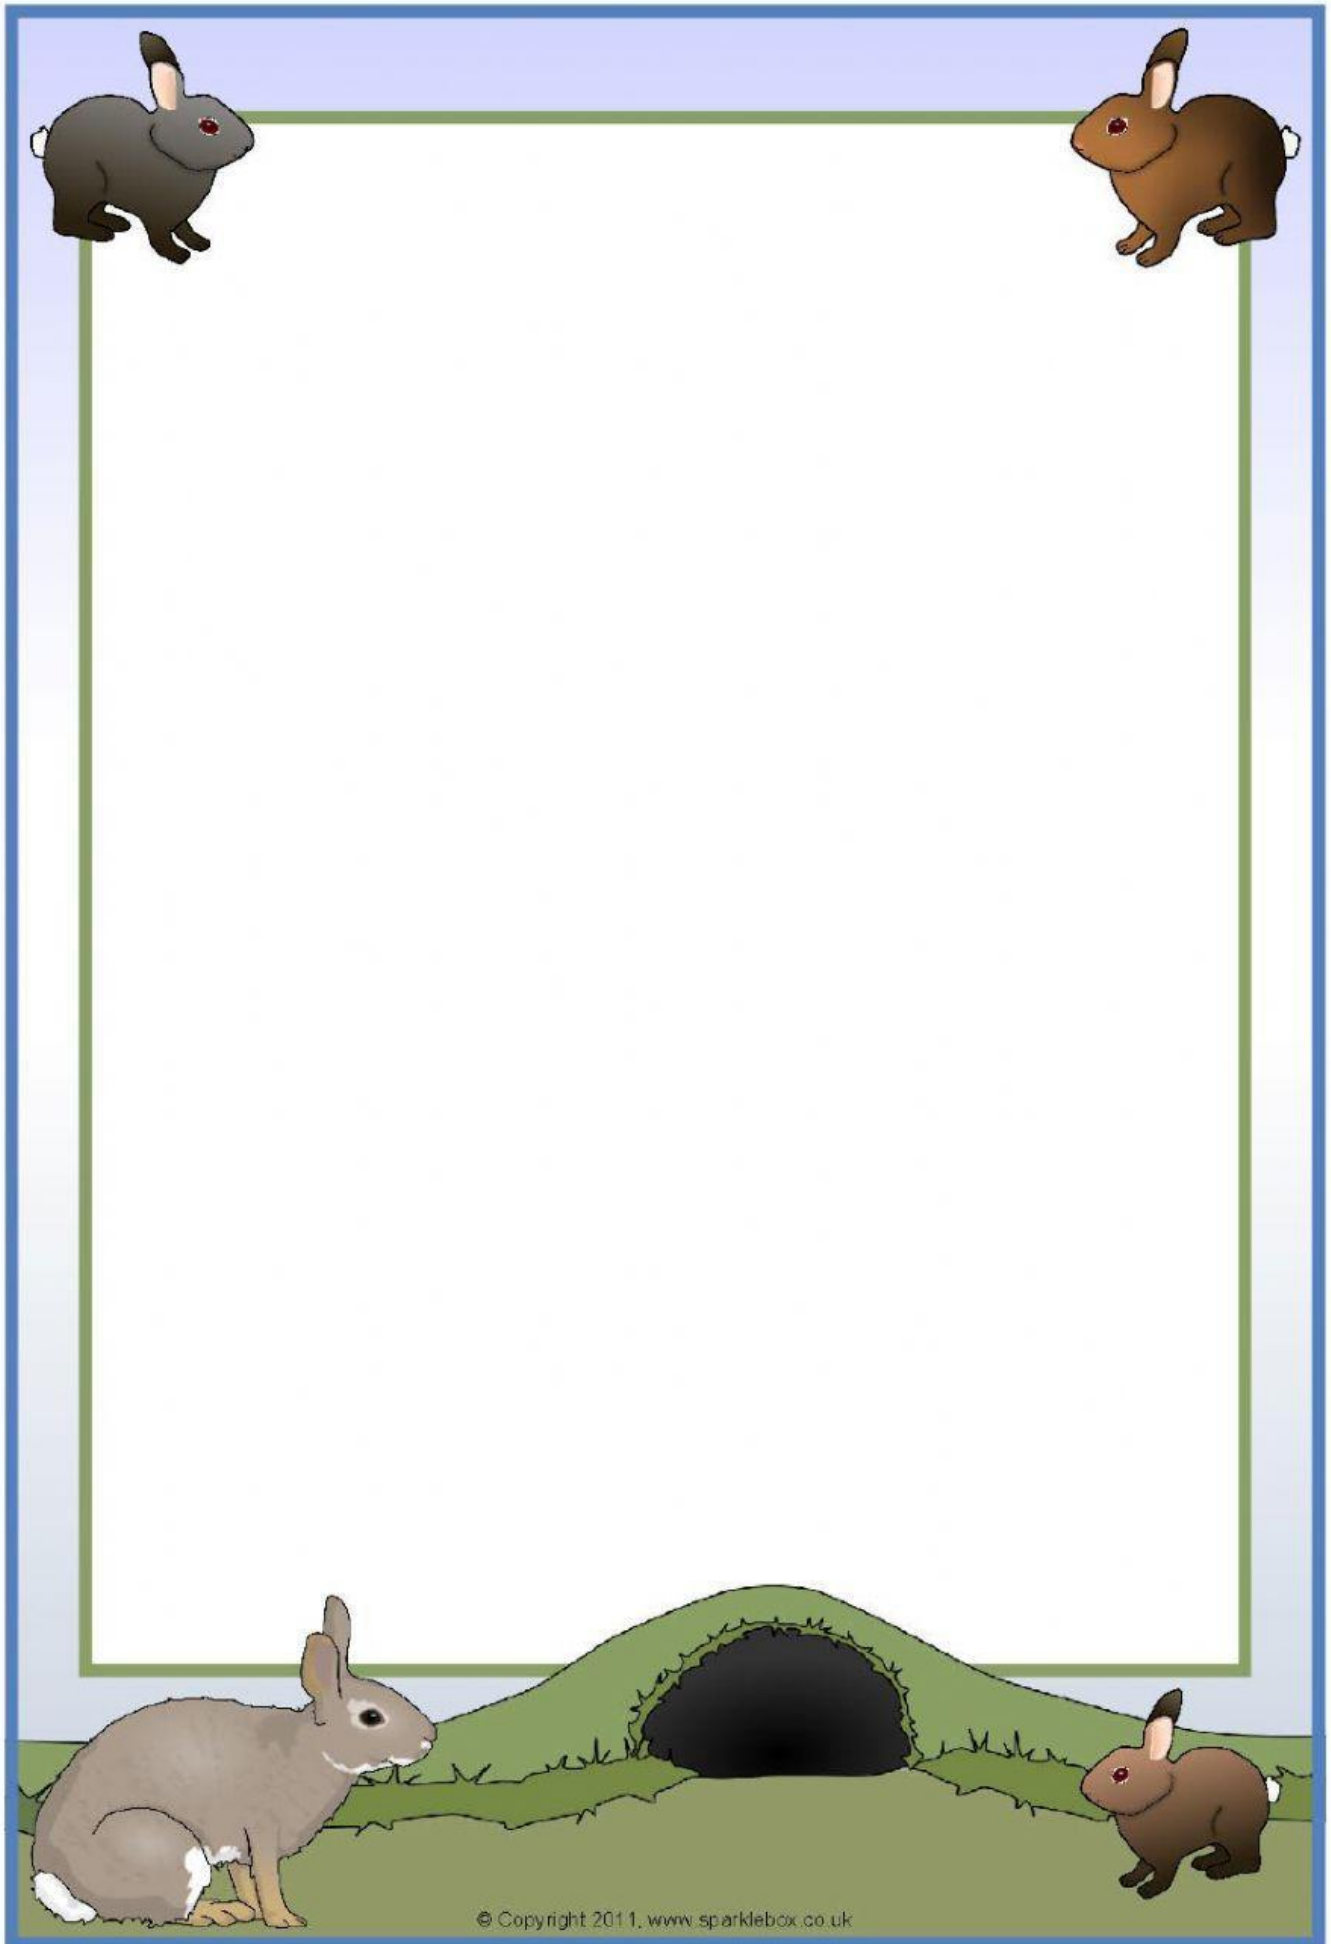

rabbit

hare

© Copyright 2011, www.sparklebox.co.uk