GERAI RAMADHAN

Three young people share their thoughts on "Gerai Ramadhan"

Raihan

Gerai Ramadhan is really popular, but I usually only go once a week. My siblings always want to come but I prefer if they stay home. They want to buy too much. Eventually, there's a lot of food left over and they throw it away. That makes me upset. Before I go, I check out Instagram to see what looks good. Then I'll make a list and bring it with me.

Priya

Gerai Ramadhan is one of my favorite things in Brunei! I used to live in a small and quiet village, and we never had anything like this before. The crowds, the noise and the delicious smell make me feel energetic. My only concern is that it's difficult to find parking! I have to ask my dad to drive me there and pick me up but sometimes he is busy. There are so many different stalls and I usually buy a little bit from everywhere. I love eating but I am a little worried about finishing my allowance!

Igor

I don't really see the appeal. Sure, there's lots of different stalls selling food. However, when there's too many choices, I struggle to choose. You see one stall selling Kebabs, and then you'll find ten more. It's also hard to find a healthy option. Most of the foods are fried and covered in sugar. Fortunately, it's all quite affordable so I'm not too bothered if I buy something I don't like.

amirah aji

LIVEWORKSHEETS

a) Which person finds it hard to make a decision? _____

Evidence:_____

b) Which person enjoys the atmosphere? _____

Evidence:_____

c) Which person prefers going by themselves? _____

Evidence:_____

d) Which person struggles to find something nutritious to eat? _____

Evidence:_____

e) Which person has problems with transportation? _____

Evidence:_____

f) Which person feels bad about wasting food? _____

Evidence:_____

g) Which person likes to make a plan before going? _____

Evidence:_____

h) Which person is concerned about money? _____

Evidence:_____

amirah aji

LIVEWORKSHEETS