Informatics High School QUIZ

— It's eleven o'clock! I was sleeping. What was that noise, Sue?

— I wasn't making any noise. I was talking on the phone.

— What was that noise?

— We weren't making any noise. We were playing.

— Again? Oh, no! The noise is coming from outside!

Yesterday at 11 p.m...

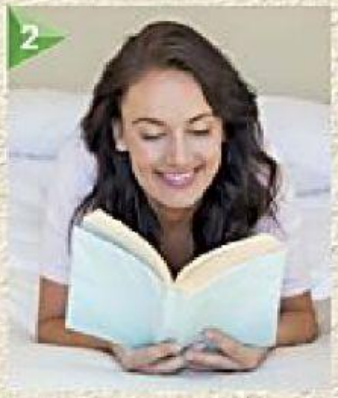

1. Grandma was watching TV.
2. Sue was sleeping.
3. The boys were talking on the phone.
4. The cats were drinking milk.

Student A: Grandma wasn't watching TV. She was sleeping.

Student B: Sue wasn't...

▸ Use your notebook to write what they weren't doing at 11 p.m.

He wasn't reading. He wasn't sleeping. He wasn't drinking anything.

▸ Exchange notebooks with a friend and guess the characters.

COOL Grammar

Past Continuous

- She wasn't sleeping.
- We weren't making any noise.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Informatics High School QUIZ

2 Read and answer the questions.

THE WORLDS BEST SELLING NATIONAL NEWSPAPER — Est - 1965

Monday 5th June

New Medicine Can Save Thousand of Lives

By Julius Trekk

Sci-Fi Pharmaceuticals organized a launch yesterday to present an amazing new medicine. Doctor Oskar Beninsky worked for five years to develop the formula. It is a syrup that makes you predict natural disasters. The effects of the syrup last for one month after you drink 100 ml. In the presentation, two volunteers drank it and said that its flavor is similar to blueberries.

This new syrup makes you predict natural disasters.

CONFIDENTIAL

1. Who developed the new medicine? _____
2. What are its effects? _____
3. How long do the effects last? _____
4. What does it taste like? _____

- Play Who did it?

Roles:

SUSPECTS

Reporter

Photographer

Scientist

Dr. Beninsky

Police Officer

- If you are one of the suspects, plan your alibi:
  Where were you?
  What were you doing after the presentation?
  Did anybody see you?

- If you are the police officer, prepare your questions. Then interrogate the suspects to discover the thief.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Informatics High School QUIZ

LIVEWORKSHEETS