Sender's signature		6 January
Sender's address		Dear Sir or Madam,
Ending		I believe that the most important invention created in the last hundred years is the Internet. It is hard to believe how much our lives have changed since the Internet was invented! Here are just some of the ways in which the Internet has improved life for most people.
Date		First of all, the Internet connects people. Families who live far apart can use video calls, so they can not only speak to each other, but see each other too. People can also use email to stay in touch easily, even when there is a great distance between them.
Introduction		Secondly, the Internet contains a vast amount of useful information. If you want to know the answer to a question, just type it into a search engine. In moments you will find many different websites offering an answer. In addition, the Internet is a brilliant source of entertainment. Whatever your interest, you will find something to enjoy on the Internet.
Sender's name		The Internet also makes life easier. Why queue for hours at the shops, when you can order your shopping in the peace and quiet of your home – and have it delivered direct to your door?
Greeting to recipient		In conclusion, I believe that the Internet is the finest human invention of the last century. I would certainly not like to go back to life before the Internet was invented!
Body		Yours faithfully,
		A. Baxter
