Indoor and Outdoor Plants

Some people live in houses with big gardens. Other people live in apartments that don't have gardens. People can grow indoor plants inside. Outdoor plants need a lot of warmth, sunlight, and water in the garden, but indoor plants usually need less of these things. Indoor plants can have flowers. But sometimes the stems and leaves are smaller, and they grow more slowly than plants that live in the garden.

Unlike outdoor plants, insects don't pollinate indoor plants. This means that people buy and plant seeds. Plants outdoors are strong, so they can live with the wind, and hot and cold temperatures.
