

COMPARISONS AND MODALS

I. Transform the sentences using the words in bold.

- No one in our group is as polite as Richard is. THE
Richard in our group.
- The river isn't as rough today as it was yesterday. THAN
The river today yesterday.
- With every minute I was waiting, my boredom was increasing. MORE
The was becoming.
- There's nobody whose French is more fluent than Sonia's is. AS Nobody Sonia.
- The test was so difficult that only few of us completed it. SUCH
It few of us completed it.
- So far we've given you some information, but if you want more, please contact us. NEED
If, please contact us. (Don't use "more")
- It is the first time she has eaten such an unusual meal. EVER
This is eaten.
- I didn't think his newest novel would be so uninteresting. FAR
His newest novel I thought.

II. Transform the sentences keeping the original meaning.

- I'm sure she hasn't come back yet.
She yet.
- You told them much more than was necessary.
You much.
- It's likely that he suffers a lot.
He a lot.
- It was certain that he had learnt the bad language at school.
He the bad language at school.
- You weren't required to take part in the interview.
You part in the interview.
- Why did you go sailing in such bad weather?
You in such bad weather.
- I am certain that Gregory is having a great time at the party now.
Gregory at the party now.