And though they _____ (talk) for just a little time

Before she_____ (say) she ____ (have) to go

He_____ (see) the meeting as a tiny sign

That _____ (tell) him all he _____ (have) to know

It's not always true that time heals all wounds

There are wounds that you don't wanna heal

The memories of something really good

Something truly real, that you never found again.

And so Louise

_____ (wave) from the bus

And as she _____ (leave)

She_____ (give) that smile

As if they_____ (be) still lovers.

She _____ (take) a moment just to recognise

The man she'd known so well before

And as he_____ (start) to apologise

Lose any bitterness she bore

She gently_____ (put) her finger on his lips

To let him know she _____ (understand)

And with her suitcase standing on the floor

_____ (embrace) him like a lover would.

"Hello, Louise,

Remember me?

Now should we part?

Or stay a while?

As if we were still lovers."

When he _____ (see) her getting of the bus

It _____ (seem) to wipe away the years

Her face _____ (be) older, just a little rough

But her eyes _____ (be) still so clear

He_____ (drink) his coffee and he _____ (hurry) out

Across before she_____ (walk) away

Then he_____ (approach) her like a little child

Too scared for what he_____ (have) to say:

He_____ (tell) Louise

"You look so good

It's just you see

You make me feel

As if we were still lovers."
