An unlikely assignment

As I walked into the school library, I sighed. It was so unfair! We had to do a book report, but we didn't get to pick a book. I really had to disagree with the choice of the author. It was an author I dislike. My teacher said I might enjoy the book. I thought that was unlikely.

At the library shelves, I felt worse. I found a copy of the book to review. I opened it slowly.

Then the strangest thing happened. I read the first page, and it was actually interesting! I couldn't stop reading.

When I checked out the book, the librarian smiled. "Don't forget to return this book on time," she said.
