Dear Susanne,

Thank you for the birthday party invitation. I am honoured to be invited yet I am sorry to inform you that I will not be able to make it as it is a trying time for my family at the moment. My mum is not herself right now and I have to fill in for her to do the housework and take care of her. Anyway, enjoy your party nevertheless and happy birthday in advance!

Regards,
Sofiya

Experience Penang 2020

TikTok, the world's prominent short video platform, today announced its partnership with Penang Global Tourism. A Memorandum of Understanding was signed between Penang State EXCO of Tourism Development, Arts, Culture and Heritage and TikTok representative. Penang Global Tourism is the first Malaysia's travel industry to band together with TikTok. TikTok launched the initiative of #TikTokTravel to inspire users to creatively capture and share their favourite travel moments.

#TikTokTravel is created to promote TikTok as the sought-after application for social media fans to record various travel minutes, from stunning scenery to inspirational cultural legacy, from seeing to experiencing and from recording to sharing – all on mobile. In Penang, it will start with a list of online initiatives to advertise the state's places of interest on TikTok. Among these exciting initiatives include online challenges, bespoke photo filters and messenger stickers. The initiatives kick off Experience Penang 2020, a campaign by Penang Global Tourism. The campaign highlights everything that Penang has to offer to local and global visitors. The campaign will display every aspect of Penang's astounding diversity through its culture, heritage, arts, food as well as its natural surroundings.

As part of the campaign, users can also participate in TikTok's latest online contest that has been launched recently. Utilising the messenger stickers on TikTok, users can easily capture their greatest moments in Penang. These include displaying its rich heritage, distinct culture and food, captivating art and exquisite nature. Once the best moment is captured, users have to tag the post with the hashtag #ExperiencePenang.

Languages

My mother tongue is the Malay language which is the only language used in my family. When I was 5 years old, my father enrolled me in an English medium kindergarten. There, I was given the chance to choose either to learn Mandarin or the Malay language. I attended the trial classes for both languages. The teacher taught us to count from 1 to 10 in Mandarin and made us repeat her pronunciation as she pointed to the digits on the whiteboard. Although I did not choose the Mandarin class, I could still remember the lesson because the teacher continuously instructed the Mandarin class pupils to repeat the same lesson every day. They were loud so I could hear them clearly from the next room. Some researches show that children often imitate the sounds and patterns which they hear around them until a habit is formed. I suppose that is the logical reasoning of why I know how to count from 1 to 10 in Mandarin even though I did not take the class.

English had been a subject I was good at in school because my mother was an English teacher and she taught me grammar when I started primary school. My father would cut out pictures and articles from newspapers and pasted them in exercise books to provide writing exercises for me to do. I picked up a reading habit later on when I was 8 years old. My parents realised my growing interest in it and started making weekend trips to the local library to let me read more. When I entered my secondary school, I began to read English novels and grew an interest in reading thrillers so I started reading more serious novels.

My father is fluent in Thai language due to his family background but he did not teach my siblings and me the language. I have never asked him why to this day.
