

- 1. The information would be more nebulous, and the outcomes of our decisions would be unpredictable.
- 2. Insulated from the consequences of such decisions, and privy to all critical information about the case, we were able to solve complex business problems with relative ease.
- 3. We knew that once we began our internships, this would no longer be the case.
- 4. During the school year, we had the benefit of being both unaccountable and omnipotent.
- 5. So, in approaching this impending summer period, what lingered in the back of our minds was a collectively felt, unspeakable thought: "Were we really up to the challenge?"

- 1. Some have also had to face new predators.
- 2. Since European settlement, they have had to compete with a range of introduced animals for habitat, food, and shelter.
- 3. Australia's native plants and animals adapted to life on an isolated continent over millions of years.
- 4. These new pressures have also caused a major impact on our country's soil and waterways and on its native plants and animals.
