

Task 1

Synonyms or Antonyms for annoy?

~~Bother~~—cheer comfort content delight get infuriate irritate madden please satisfy upset worry

Synonyms	Antonyms
Bother

Task 2

Test your partner

1. How often have you been grumpy?
2. How often have you been feeling like you might suddenly lose self-control?
3. How often have other people have been getting on your nerves?
4. How often have things been bothering you more than they normally do?
5. How often have you been feeling irritable?

1 = never, 2 = rarely, 3 = sometimes, 4 = often, 5 = very often, 6 = always

Your score:

Your partner's score:

Task 3

A How do you feel about these situations? Complete the sentences with it clauses from the list. Then take turns reading your sentences with a partner.

I love it

I like it

It makes me happy

I don't mind it

It doesn't bother me

It annoys me

I don't like it

It really upsets me

I can't stand it

1. .... when someone gives me a compliment.
2. .... when I get phone calls on my birthday.
3. .... when a stranger asks me for money.
4. .... when people call me late at night.
5. .... when teachers are temperamental.
6. .... when people are direct and say what's on their mind.
7. .... when someone corrects my English in front of others.
8. .... when a friend is sensitive and supportive.
9. .... when people throw trash on the ground.
10. .... when a friend treats me to dinner.

Task 4

Write down 5 things that annoy you about how people behave on the internet

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.
- 5.

Task 5

Check list: Is it true for you?

- It's important to have friends.
- I know all my friends on social media.
- I add a new friend at least every week.
- The number of friends on social media is important.
- I talk to my real time friends regularly in real time.
- During holiday time, I spend a lot of time messaging and texting my friends.

- Talking to friends via social media can sometimes be challenging.
- It's important to do things together with your friends.
- A friend on social media cannot ever be a true friend.
- I 'unfriend' people from time to time.