

Use Both... (and); (N)either... ((n)or) to complete the sentences.

Find out why some parents think that their teenage sons or daughters have a lot in common with cats. (Don't take it too seriously, though.)

1. _____ cats _____ teenagers turn their heads when you call them.
2. You would hardly ever see a cat walking outside of the house with its master. _____ would you see a teenager in public with his or her parents very often.
3. A cat doesn't share your taste in music. A teenager doesn't _____.
4. _____ cats _____ teenagers can lie on the sofa for hours.
5. _____ cats _____ teenagers expect you to prepare the food for them.
6. If you tell a joke, _____ your cat _____ your teen will laugh at it.
7. If you make a sudden move in their direction, _____ cats _____ teenagers get frightened.
8. _____ cats _____ teenagers improve your furniture.
9. _____ cats _____ teenagers roam outside and often come home very late at night.

Conclusion: no matter if you _____ have a cat _____ a teenager at home - it's all the same.

