My Angah rented[1] a karaoke crew to play at her daughter's wedding, and the songs played were mostly wedding songs. We enjoyed[2] our food while listening to the guests singing the songs. Some of them had great voices but some sounded funny!

Finally, the groom arrived[3]. The groom was dressed in a fancy yellow 'baju Melayu' with a 'samping' wrapped around his waist. Tucked[4] in his 'samping' was a commonly used wedding accessory, a 'keris' (Malay dagger). The headgear on the groom's head is called a 'dastar'. The groom arrived with his best man who was in charge of taking the groom to his bride later on and his own party of people.

The bride was waiting[5] inside the house seated on a decorated wedding dais. Then they were seated and the photography session started. We couldn't wait any longer since my parents wanted to go to the wet market. So, we thanked my Angah and proceeded to our car. Over all, I was terribly tired but at the same time I was happy to have attended[6] my cousin's wedding.
