AN ANCIENT CAPITAL

Chan Chan is an old city near the sea in Peru. Today, there are only ruins and nobody lives there. But from 850 to 1470 it was the capital of the Chimú Empire. In those days, it was a very big and important city. In the 1400s, there were about fifty thousand people in Chan Chan. There were about ten thousand buildings with ten very big palaces.

These palaces were the home of the Chimú kings. They were amazing buildings with very Big walls. Inside the palaces, there were gardens, streets, temples, and many different rooms.

There were beautiful pictures on the walls, and you can see some of these pictures today.
