

Purpose of the family

Read the following story and match the answer with the questions. Pay attention to the people's purpose.

DAY OF THE DEATH ORGANIZATION

On the Day of the Death, my family always goes to the pantheon to visit my grandma and grandpa.

There, my mom takes a broom and mop to clean the grave and make it look good when they come and visit.

Mexican myths say that on this day, the death come back to visit us and make sure we are doing OK.

Usually, people put offers in an altar, such as food and things people liked for the death to remember how their lives were before.

My aunts pray for the souls of my grandma and grandpa to make them come back. When they think they are there, they talk to them to feel connected to them. My nieces and nephews make sure to help as much as they can by cleaning or helping the grown up. After we visit my grandpas, we move on to my aunt's house to eat some good food. There is pozole, tamales, tacos, gorditas, etc. We gather to remember the ones that are not longer with us and honour their memories.

QUESTIONS

1. Families go to the pantheons to ...
 2. My mom takes the broom and mop to ...
 3. The death people come to ...
 4. People put personal things in altars to ...
 5. We talk to them to ...
 6. We visit aunt to ...
 7. We gather to ...
- a. clean the graves.
 - b. to feel connected.
 - c. eat some delicious food.
 - d. make sure we are OK.
 - e. visit their dead relatives.
 - f. remember the ones that are gone.
 - g. to remember how they were before.