He was born in the sky

Alfie Delemere was born on a plane, 10,000 meters up in the sky! In April 2007, his parents Nicola (31) and Dominic (28) were on their way from Manchester to Crete for a holiday. Nicola was only six months pregnant, but when they were over Germany, Alfie was born. There were no doctors on board, but luckily, the flight attendant, Carol Miller, was there and there was also a nurse.

Afterwards, Dominic said, 'Thank you, everybody for your help in the air and on the ground. And thank you Carol, for saving our baby's life'.
