Convicted twice of reckless driving, Victor will lose his license if he commits another serious traffic offense.

Parts of speech offender n., offensive adj

7. peer n. A person who is one's social equal

In requiring judgment by "a jury of one's peers," U.S. law meant to protect lower-class defendants from the possibly biased judgment of upper-class juries.

8. suspect n. Someone who, in the opinion of the police, might have committed a certain crime

The police were investigating the activities of five suspects in the liquor-store robbery.

Parts of speech suspect v., suspicion n., suspicious adj., suspiciously adv

9. verdict n. A judgment in a court case

It took the jury only 30 minutes to reach a verdict of "guilty."

Usage tips Verdict is often the object of the verbs reach or arrive at.

10. witness v. To see something, especially a crime, happen

After witnessing the car theft, Rodney called the police.

Parts of speech witness n

TOEFL Prep I Find the word or phrase that is closest in meaning to each word in the left-hand column. Write the letter in the blank.

| _____ 5. peer | (e) to say someone did a bad thing |

TOEFL Prep II Circle the word that best completes each sentence.

1. The most likely (suspect / witness) in the murder was the victim's brother, but no one actually saw the crime.
2. The new president (allegedly / guiltily) had his main opponents killed, but he denies it.
3. At one time in the United States, possession of marijuana was a minor (verdict / offense).
4. The (witness / peer) made a poor impression on the jury because he couldn't remember many details about the crime scene.
5. Juries are instructed to arrive at a unanimous (verdict / convict), one agreeable to all members of the jury.

TOEFL Success Read the passage to review the vocabulary you have learned. Answer the questions that follow.

One of the most controversial murder cases of the twentieth century was that involving the death of Marilyn Sheppard in 1954. Her husband, Dr. Sam Sheppard, was accused of killing her and then injuring himself. An unlikely suspect, Sheppard was highly respected by his peers in the medical world. Still, there were odd aspects to the murder that Sheppard could not explain away. Unfortunately for Sheppard, none of his supporters actually witnessed the crime, so nobody could back up Sheppard's claim that the real killer was a bushy-haired man whom Sheppard had chased across his lawn and fought with briefly.

Sheppard was eventually convicted of the offense, but many people doubted the verdict. With aggressive help from a lawyer named F Lee Bailey, Sheppard got a new trial. Bailey suggested many alternatives to Sheppard's guilt, enough that the new jury could not say he was guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. Sheppard was released from prison but died soon afterward. His son, Chip, pursued the case through several civil and criminal proceedings in an attempt to find out the truth about his mother's murder. Late in the 1990s, new DNA analysis techniques proved that someone other than Sam Sheppard and his family had been in the house that night. Sheppard's story about the bushy-haired man had probably been accurate all along.

Bonus Structure—
The clause containing but and doubt signals that arguments against the verdict will be given.

1. Why was the Sheppard case unusual?
 - a. A husband was accused of murdering his wife.
 - b. The murder occurred in 1954.
 - c. Doubt about the guilty verdict led to a second trial.
 - d. The accused murderer said he didn't do it.
2. The author of this article implies that Sam Sheppard _____
 - a. did not kill his wife
 - b. lied about the bushy-haired man
 - c. did not love his wife
 - d. married again after he got out of prison

3. Until we finish our _____ into the disappearance of the cash, all employees are suspects.
4. Even if there is _____, such as fingerprints, that might _____ someone in a crime, there might be other indications that the person is innocent.

TOEFL Success Read the passage to review the vocabulary you have learned. Answer the questions that follow.

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects citizens from unreasonable search and seizure. Some civil libertarians have condemned the federal antidrug bureaucracy for threatening this basic right. In a drug case, police need no evidence to intrude on private property, apprehend a suspected dealer, and seize all the person's property. Property taken under this law may be sold for a profit later by the law-enforcement officials involved in the raid. The target of a raid might be implicated only by an unreliable report from an unfriendly neighbor. The police are not required to ascertain whether there's any physical evidence of drug activity at the site.

Bonus Structure—
In one case introduces an example.

In one case, surveillance of a large California property convinced local authorities to seize it—not because they saw drug activity but because the property was worth a lot of money. The property was taken, and its owner was shot trying to defend himself. A later inquiry determined that there were no illegal drugs on the property.

1. According to this reading, which of these activities does the author oppose?
 - a. marijuana possession
 - b. surveillance
 - c. property seizures
 - d. civil libertarians
2. Why does the author of this reading mention the Fourth Amendment?
 - a. because drug-related seizures seem to violate it
 - b. because it outlaws the use of certain drugs
 - c. because it has finally stopped the antidrug forces from seizing property
 - d. because he disagrees that Americans should be protected by it
