A village of many nations

1
237 years ago the settlements in Zmiivka were founded. Today Zmiivka is being monitored by the Swedish Embassy in Ukraine, which protects life in this small corner of Europe. The place is populated by around 3,000 locals, and surprisingly you can meet people of 15 different nationalities there, including Swedes, Germans and Moldavans, speaking a number of languages.

The best and the most convenient way to get there is to travel by bus to Nova Kakhovka (Kherson region), and from there by taxi to Zmiivka. The taxi journey takes about 20 minutes and you will be charged approximately 80 hryvnias. If you don't like public transport, you can always travel by car, of course.

The village was founded in 1782 by Swedish immigrants, who at that time were being relocated from the Baltic island of Dage. At the beginning of the 19th century three settlements of German colonists appeared nearby. After World War II all four settlements were renamed and later united into one village – Zmiivka

The first church in Zmiivka was given to the village by Potemkin. At the end of the 20th century, the locals built a new church made of stone in its place, as the original one had been burnt before World War II. At present, there are three different churches in the village. There you can also see the memorial to the victims of operation 'Visla', and one to the repressed Swedish community and the monument to the Fighter for Freedom of Ukraine'.
