	We have recently had a lesson about Alex, a bike messenger from the USA. He rides his bike in Brooklyn, New York to collect and deliver small packages from one place to another. In Bahrain, we have similar jobs, but not exactly the same one. In this essay, I am going to write the pros and cons of this job and then say if it is my dream job.
	On the one hand, Alex's job has a lot of advantages. First, riding a bike instead of driving a car keeps him fit and reduces air pollution in the city. Second, Alex doesn't have to pay for petrol and maintaining his bike doesn't cost much. Third, his customers enjoy his service because it is not only fast, but also cheap. Last but not least, a bike messenger is lucky because he keeps exploring the city and he knows the people very well.
	On the other hand, Alex's job also has some disadvantages. For example, it is not financially rewarding. He doesn't earn much money and his bike needs constant repair. In addition, his job is not healthy because he usually breathes polluted air and carries heavy packages. Also, it is stressful since he has to cycle to distant places in heavy traffic. Most importantly, this job is also dangerous because the rider can easily have an accident in the crowded streets and thieves can steal his bike.
	All in all, the job of a bike messenger is enjoyable, but it is not my favourite because it is risky and not financially rewarding.
