Jack and his mother __ hungry. The cow in the barn __ them milk, but they needed food. Jack's mother said, 'We must __ the cow to get some food.' Jack volunteered to take the cow to town. Along the way, Jack __ a farmer who talked him into giving __ the cow in exchange for a handful of good luck beans.

When Jack returned home, his mother __very cross because they lost their cow for a few beans. She __ the beans out the window and went to bed. The beans __ to grow straight up into the sky, so Jack climbed the beanstalk hoping to find good luck at the top.

Instead, he __ himself in a giant's castle. The giant was counting his money and singing 'fee fie foe fum, I like children in my tummy.' The giant's wife helped Jack hide so the giant wouldn't eat him. Then Jack realized something and said, 'Hey, this giant __ my father's money!' The giant's wife said, 'This magic hen and golden harp used to belong to your father too. Play the harp, and then run!'

Jack played the harp, and the giant __ asleep. Jack grabbed the money and the hen and started running. But on the way outside, he knocked over the harp and __ the giant up. The giant chased Jack all the way down the beanstalk chanting 'fee fie foe fum I like children in my tummy."

When Jack reached the bottom, he chopped down the beanstalk with an ax. The giant was no more. Then the magic hen clucked and __ a golden egg. Jack's mother, awakened by all the noise, __ the golden egg, put it with the money, and said, 'Now we'll have something nice to eat.'
