

The Birthday

It's Lenny's birthday. These are his presents. He can open them at three o'clock. What are they? Lenny thinks and thinks.

He looks at the blue present.

'This is big,' he thinks. 'Is it a bike? I don't have a bike.'

'What's this red present?' Lenny thinks. 'Chocolates!'

Lenny has got a cat, Bobbin. It jumps on the green present. The present falls on the floor.

'Oops,' says Lenny. 'Brrrrrrrrrrrrring', goes the present. It doesn't stop.

'Is it a clock?' thinks Lenny. 'I don't like clocks!'

Lenny picks up the yellow present. 'What's this yellow one? Is it a T-shirt?'

He hears the grandfather clock, 'Bong! Bong! Bong!' Three o'clock!

The door opens. Here are his friends! It's a party!

'Happy Birthday, Lenny,' his friends say.

Now Lenny can open his presents. Is he right?

In the yellow present there was a sweater. There were coloured pencils and paints in the red. There were gates and a football in the blue one. There was a fire engine in the green.
