When spring and summer came it was a ;
..... relief. They learned so many things that first year. They had and cared for their first fields of corn. They had found wild strawberries in the meadows, raspberries on the hillsides, and wild grapes in the woods. In the forest just back of the village wild and deer were easily shot. In the shallow waters of the bay there was plenty of, clams, and lobsters.
The summer had been warm, with a good deal of rain and much sunshine; and so when autumn came there was a fine crop of They wanted to

"Yes," said Elder Brewster, "let us take a day upon which we may God for all our blessings, and invite our Indian friends who have been so kind to us."

The great chief, Massasoit, came with
