A QUICK GUIDE TO SAVING MONEY

As a teenager, it is important to know how to save your money. You must keep record of your spending. Use a notebook or some other means. This can be boring, but it is the best way to make sure you don't spend too much money. You'll be able to see exactly how much money you have left at the end of each month. You can also monitor how you spend your money. Try not to spend too much money at the beginning of the month so that you will have enough money until the end of the month.

Be smart with your food shopping. Food will be one of your biggest costs. Buying supermarket value products rather than well-known brands and shopping at the end of the dat when many items are discounted are some of the simplest ways to save money. Cook your own meals instead of always eating out.

Don't overpay for transport. Buses remain one of the cheapest ways to travel around town. Check whether there are any student discounts or monthly passes available. In certain cities, there are free buses for tourists that you can use to get around.

Don't forget to take advantage of student discounts. Many shops and food outlets offer students discount. Even when they aren't advertised, it's worth asking as they are sometimes still available.

GRANDFATHER'S COINS

Every Sunday, Alex and his cousins, Ruben, Nico, Clara, Joe and Monty, would go for a big family meal at their grandparents' house. They would always wait excitedly for the moment their grandfather would give them a few coins, so that they could buy something for themselves. Then, all the children would run off to buy chewing gum and lollipops. Their grandparents soon realised the children would never learn how to manage their money like this. So, they started a competition. After a year, the children would have to show what they had done with all the coins they had received.

Ruben and Nico, the two smallest children, continued spending all their money buying sweets. Every week, they would show off their sweets to the other children, while laughing and enjoying them. Clara and Joe started saving their coins instead. But after watching Ruben and Nico enjoy themselves week after week, both of them became jealous and could no longer stand saving their money. They gave up and joined Ruben and Nico in spending whatever they had on sweets.

However, Monty was a smart boy. He decided to manage his money by buying and selling things. Soon he had a lot of money for his effort. He was close to winning. However, Monty was greedy and he started betting with his school friends. A month later, he lost all of his money.

Alex, on the other hand, had a will of iron. He saved all the money he was given and collected more money than everyone else by the end of the year. With so much money, he managed to buy many sweets at a discount—enough for more than a year. In addition, he even had enough money left to buy himself a toy. He was the clear winner, and the rest of his cousins learnt from him about the advantages of saving money and waiting before spending.

Trip to Sabah

My friends and I are member of the English Club. Last week, we went on a trip to Kota Kinabalu, Sabah. 35 It was a long four-hour journey to Kota Kinabalu, Sabah but when we finally reached our destination, we were very happy. 36

Not long after that, we were greeted warmly by the captain of KD Sri Kinabalu. 37 Among these were the navigation room and the captain's room. The captain told us that the ship could be run by just eight people. It could also be put on automatic mode from a computerised system. 38 It had a bedroom and an attached bathroom. Besides that, the captain's room had a closet-circuit television (CCTV) through which he could view the goings-on in any part of the ship.

39 It was a place where the guns were mounted. There were three huge guns which could be used to fire missiles onto land, and into the sea and in the air. Looking at the guns made us nervous but we were relieved when the captain told us that the guns had never been used in any war.

Before we left, we had tea with the captain. We also took photographs of KD Sri Kinabalu with him and his crew. 40

A We could see the harbour, KD Sri Kinabalu and the beautiful sea right in front of us.

B We went there to see the long-lost ship.

C He then took us on a tour of the various quarters of the ship.

D Then, we went to the gunport.

E We went there to visit a naval warship named KD Sri Kinabalu.

F He introduced us to his crew of sailors.

G He then thanked us for visiting them.

H The captain's room was both home and office to him.
