READING: SKIMMING AND SCANNING

A. Look at the grammar chart and analyze about Reading: Skimming and Scanning.

Scanning is one type of fast reading. You are looking for specific information.

Look for the answer around the key word.

You might use scanning to:

- look up a word in a dictionary or index
- find an address or a phone number in a directory
- check what time your programme is on television
- look up details or prices in a catalogue
- Can you give another example of scan reading?

Skimming is another type of fast reading. You might use skimming to look through a text quickly to get the gist (the general idea).

Look for important information without reading the whole text.

You might use skimming to:

- see what's in the news in a paper or on a website
- browse through a book to see if you want to read it
- look through the television guide to see what's on one evening
- Can you give another example of skim reading?

HOW IMPORTANT IS THE MUSIC IN MOVIES?

THE MUSIC BEHIND THE MOVIES

A film score is the music that is specifically written to accompany a particular movie. The music is part of the film's soundtrack, which includes noises and voices. The music is specially designed to go along with the plot of the movie, enhancing the dramatic parts. Scores can be written by one or more composers, and are usually performed by orchestras with live musicians and sung by live vocalists. Scores include all genres of music, from jazz to blues to country to classical to electronic. Sometimes soundtracks of movies incorporate a pop song that is recorded independently. An example of this is the song "My Heart Will Go On", written by James Horner and sung by Canadian singer Celine Dion. It was used in the movie Titanic. Scores go through a long editing process before reaching the final version that you hear in the movie theater. This is a tedious process that involves not only musicians and directors, but also sound engineers. It is such an important part of the movie that there is even a category at the Oscars for Best Original Score.
