COMPREHENSION TEST 2

Read the passage below carefully, then answer the questions which are based on it. Use complete sentences, correct grammar and spelling.

The small islands that can be found between Central America and the Atlantic Ocean are often referred to as the West Indies. These Caribbean islands can be further separated into three main groups: The Greater Antilles, the Lesser 5 Antilles and the Bahamas.

The Greater Antilles are a group of islands in the Caribbean that are the largest in size compared to the others. These islands are located to the northern end of the Caribbean Sea which is south of the United States. There are four islands
10 in this category: Hispaniola (Haiti and the Dominican Republic), Cuba, Puerto Rico and Jamaica.

In contrast, the Lesser Antilles are the chain of smaller islands located to the southern end of the Caribbean Sea and are much nearer to South America. The Lesser Antilles can be 15 further divided into three main groups: The Windward Islands, the Leeward Islands and the Leeward Antilles.

Windward Islands are those that are south in the chain. The word "Windward" is used to describe islands that are exposed to the oncoming winds that blow from south to north.
20 Some of these islands include Trinidad and Tobago, Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, Barbados and Martinique.

The Leeward Islands are those that are north in the chain. The word "Leeward" describes islands that are downwind and not as exposed to the prevailing winds as those 25 located south. These islands also tend to be less windy and drier. Some examples of these islands include Antigua, Barbuda, Saint Kitts and Nevis, Montserrat and Guadeloupe.

Lastly are the Leeward Antilles, also called the "ABC Islands", which are located off the coast of South America and 30 include Aruba, Bonaire, and Curacao.
