Unfortunately, the kart center closed soon afterwards, and there wasn't another one near enough o his home that he could get to.

As he couldn't race karts any more, Jann decided to try computer racing games. After lots of practice, he became very good. However, he never told his parents what he was doing. His prize was to drive a real car in a race against the other nine top players.

It was Jann's first time in a racing car, but, amazingly, he won the race! The prize this time was a free course to learn to be a racing driver. He did really well, and has found a job driving in a racing team.
