Consequences of the war

Consequences of the war

A. Reading part

The countries that participated in the war were exhausted and bled to death. It is estimated that 9 million died as a result of the war (one in every seven inhabitants); 22 million received wounds; 7 million were disabled and 5 million were declared missing.

Four empires were dismembered by the war: the Russian, the Austro-Hungarian, the Turkish and the German. New states appeared on the map of Europe. Two great personalities emerged: Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, who proposed the creation of the League of Nations; and Vladimir Lenin, leader of the Bolshevik revolutionaries, who proclaimed the world socialist revolution.

B. Practice time

- Choose the correct answer.

1. How were the countries that participated in the war?

A. Tired and battered B. Dead and bled.

C. Exhausted and bled D. Without leaders and without weapons.

2. How many people were declared missing?

A. 22 million B. 7 million

C. 5 million D. 9 million

3. How many empires collapsed in the war?

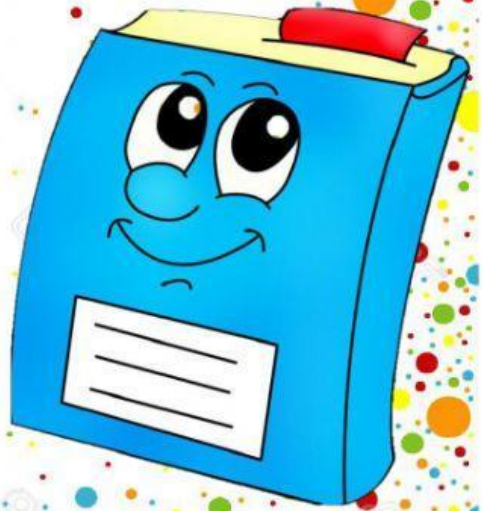

A. 4 B. 8

C. 6 D. none

4. Who was the leader of the Bolshevik revolutionaries?

A. Only Vladimir Lenin B. Solo Woodrow Wilson

C, Both C. none

LIVEWORKSHEETS