Read Amy's emai to her cousin, Steve. Then do the exercises on the next page.

Hi Steve!

How's everything going? I have some news to tell you. My parents have just told me that we're moving to the city. Mum found a job at a school in London, so we're leaving our home here. As you know, dad writes books at home, so he doesn't mind where we live.

Of course, there are many good things about moving. First of all, we can visit each other more often. Mum said that we may be in the same school! So I can meet all your friends and I won't feel lonely. I also know that there's a lot to do in London. I love going to museums, and we don't have any here in the country. I also know that there's a big sports centre in your area, isn't there? I love tennis, so I hope there are some tennis courts.

But I'm also sad about moving. I will really miss my best friend, Karen. I've known her since I was a baby and we tell each other our secrets. At least, we can keep in touch by email. I also have to put my horse in a stable. This will be really difficult because I love Sandy. Mum said we may get a dog, but it's not the same thing. Of course, I'll miss the fresh air, too. When I visit London, the pollution always makes me feel tired. Here, in the countryside the air is clean and I like jogging out in nature.

We're moving in two months, that is, when school ends. What are you going to do in the summer? Please write soon and let me know.

See you soon!

Amy

Once upon a time, there was an old house in a small town. It was a very strange house and the only person who lived there was on old woman. She had a strange face, long grey hair and many cats, so everyone in the town thought she was a witch. The children were scared of her. Some of them threw rocks at her cats.

Jenny was a young girl who lived near this strange house. She had a little puppy, Spot, and she often took him out for walks. One day, Spot ran away and went right to the strange house. Jenny was scared, but she wanted to save Spot.

“Spot, Spot, where are you?” She called out. But she didn’t hear anything. So she went closer to the house. Soon she was standing in the garden. She was so scared that she was shaking. “Spot! Are you here?” Suddenly, the old woman appeared in front of her. She looked very angry. Jenny was frightened, but she didn’t scream. She just smiled at this woman and asked her if Spot was there. The woman suddenly smiled back and took Jenny to her backyard. Spot was there, playing with several cats and dogs. She gave Jenny some lemonade and they talked.

That day, Jenny learned that the old woman was very kind and lonely. She loved animals, so she always took care of any cats or dogs she found in the streets. Jane and the old woman became very good friends for many years to come.
