Australia is a very big country. It occupies a whole continent. There is a huge desert in the middle of the continent, so all major cities are located on the coast. Canberra is the capital city of Australia For the inhabitants of our hemisphere, Australia's climate seems to be very strange. From November to April there is summer and weather is warm, and from May to October there is winter and weather is very cold.
In the 18th century, the British came to the territory of Australia. They called the locals "aborigines". Before the arrival of the British, the aborigines lived great; they believed that people, animals and plants lived together once.
With the arrival of the Englishmen, Aboriginal life began to change. Many died.
