A giant had a beautiful garden.
He didn't want to share it.
"This garden is !" he said.
He built a big wall.
One day, the giant found a kite.
"Whose kite is this?" he shouted.

"It's mine," said a voice. The giant saw a brother and sister.
"It isn't . It's ," said the girl. "We share it."
"Well, this garden isn't yours," said the rude giant. "Go away!"
Later, the giant saw the children playing. It looked fun! The giant felt lonely.
Then he had an idea.
He called to the children, "The garden is mine, and the kite is .
We can share!"
So the children played with the giant, and they were friends.
