When many people think of women in Asian culture, they think of a male dominated society where women don't have as many rights as their male counterparts. However, the Filipino are different. Filipino women have always enjoyed greater quality than women in other nations in Southeast Asia.

For starters, Filipino women today serve as heads in the family arrangement, handling the money, acting as religious mentors and even arranging marriages for their sons and daughters. This does not mean that they have equality everywhere. In the workplace, Filipino women are paid less and more often hired for lower positions even if they are qualified to earn more money. On the home front, women carry a heavy burden in the homes in order to support them financially while men can keep their money and are not obligated to the family. Even though they have had a female president, involvement in politics is not considered women's business, and many women still hold to the tradition that a woman cannot take a higher position than her husband. Part of this mindset is due to the effect of colonization on Filipino women.

Like women in many parts of the world, Filipino women have had to fight for their proper place in their society. They have worked hard to extend themselves beyond the confines of their homes and show that they have the strength and power to control business and politics.

Question 19: All of the following are true about Filipino women today EXCEPT that _____.

A. they enjoy more equality than others in Southeast Asia.

B. they arrange marriages for their sons and daughters.

C. they have an important role in politics.

D. they help their children with religious matters.

Question 20: The word "they" in the passage refers to_____.

Question 21: The inequality at Filipino homes is that _____

A. men earn more to support the family and keep the money.

B. both men and women work but men keep the money.

C. women serve as the head of the family.

D. women earn money to support the family and keep the money.

Question 22: What is the best title of the passage?

A. The Changing Role of Women in Filipino Society

B. Filipino women always have great quality in life

C. The Changing Role of Women in Asia

D. Filipino women have had to fight like men in wars
