Read the passage and choose the correct answer

Deputy Health Minister Nguyen Truong Son said that constantly overloading medics in HCMC's Covid-19 field hospitals can affect treatment quality. At Covid-19 field hospitals across the city, a doctor and nurse have to take care of 140-150 patients on average, and each has to work eight-ten hours straight in protective suits, Son said. In case doctors and nurses have to take the emergency shift, they will have to work 12 hours a day, he noted. When medics have to spend time completing administrative reports after finishing their professional work, they too have to work 12 hours a day. Every day, Covid-19 medics are offered meals valued at VND120,000 ($S.27) per day; but if they get infected, they are treated like any other patient, and the budget for their daily meals drops to VND80,000 per day. Medics who come from other regions to fight the pandemic in HCMC have found it difficult to consume food cooked in ways that are different from what they are used to. This makes them lose their appetite and their health is affected. Even going out to buy snacks is a stressful process for the medics because they are strictly questioned and intrusively inspected by checkpoint task forces.

Son said hospitals must now guarantee medics enough time off at the end of their shift, avoid their

Have you ever imagined what it would be like to realize your ideal job? Getting the education and developing the abilities you need for the ideal career might take years. There is, however, a method to get a taste of your desired profession without having to obtain the necessary training or degree. Vocation Vacations, Brian Kurth's organization, has been connecting individuals with mentors who hold the employment of their dreams since 2004.

Before launching his own business, Kurth worked for a phone provider. He didn't enjoy his job, and on his way to and from work, he had plenty of time to think about it. While driving, he also considered his ideal career. He wanted to be a dog trainer, but he didn't want to take any chances by switching to an area in which he had no prior experience. He was really interested in learning more about the profession and determining whether or not it was feasible for him to pursue his objective. So he sought a mentor — a dog trainer who could teach him all he needed to know about the business. After that, he assisted his buddies in finding mentors to help them pursue occupations in which they were interested. They thought it was helpful to talk to people who had their dream jobs before spending lots of time and money getting the training they needed for those jobs.

Kurth saw how much this helped his friends, so he decided to turn it into his business. He started Vocation Vacations in 2004, and by 2005, the company was offering experience with over 200 dream jobs. Today, about 300 mentors work with the company to share their knowledge about their jobs. Customers pay to experience the job of their dreams and work with these mentors to see what a job is really like. A "job vacation" costs between $350 and $3,000 and can be for one to three days. Many people use Vocation Vacations to see if their dream job is a career path they want to continue. Others do it just to experience the job of their dreams one time.

Vocation vacation jobs are in the fields of fashion, food, entertainment, sports and animals. Many people want to try glamorous jobs. For example, they want to try working as actors, music producers, photographers and fashion designers. According to Kurth, some other popular dream jobs are working as bakers, hotel managers and wedding planners.
