It is very difficult to imagine what the future

(1) be like but some people earn a living by making predictions and I'm seriously considering it as a career. Studying the future has been a serious academic discipline since the 1960s and all around the world there are university courses in future studies, although nobody seems sure if it's an art or a science. When businesses and governments plan for the future, they ask questions like: Why do we do things? What is likely to continue? What could possibly change? So, what about the next 50 years or so? I'm (2) to make some predictions for the year 2060. The population of the world will (3) increased dramatically and a lot of animals will be extinct. The weather (4) definitely going to change for the worse and we'll all be (5) in much smaller houses. Technology will continue to develop and control our lives and everything will be much faster than it is today. We'll all have robots and they will be (6) our chores for us. There will be advances in medicine but most people will (7) be able to afford them. I hope that many of today's conflicts will have (8) resolved by then and that society will be more equal. ... Perhaps I'll set up a business as a futurologist. Although on second thoughts, maybe I'll have better luck as a science-fiction writer. I'm (9) a meeting with the school careers advisor tomorrow, so I think I (10) ask her about that instead!

Hi Natalie,

How are you? I've just got back to London after a really terrible (1) I honestly thought I was going to miss my flight home. My host mother booked a car service to take me to the airport, but it was really late coming. Apparently, one of the bridges had been closed so there was a big (2) By the time I got to the airport, there were really long queues for my flight and when I got through security I had to run to the (3) – which of course was right at the other end of the airport – because they were ready to (4) They were calling my name on the loudspeaker! And then, would you believe it, there was a delay before we were able to (5) because of a storm. It was a very bumpy flight and I was so glad to get home!

Anyway, apart from that I had a great time!

Speak soon,

Eleanor

Next weekend we are going to the Dark Skies Park in Scotland. My brother is really interested in astronomy, but living in London means that it's almost (1) (possible) for him to see the stars because of all the pollution. It's his 18th birthday so my parents want to give him a special present but one (2) (advantage) is that it's a long way to go. We're flying to Glasgow and then driving to the park. By the time we get back we will have (3) (fly) nearly 700 miles, which is not good for the planet, but I'm (4) (look) forward to going. I really care about (5) (environment) issues so it will be a good opportunity for me to see all the wildlife there. I'm taking my camera because my mum has booked me a place on a photography workshop. She says she just wants to relax but she likes cycling and I think she and my dad will go mountain biking. We are (6) (stay) in a nice hotel just outside the park which has great views and is close to the bike trails. My dad says he's (7) (go) to play golf but I don't think my mum will let him. Of course the main thing will be the star gazing. Apparently, we (8) (will) need a telescope because you can see thousands of stars with the naked eye, but we will also be (9) (visit) the observatory while we are there. My brother says it's one of the best places in the world to see the night skies and he hopes to see the Milky Way and the aurora borealis. It will probably be freezing cold at night with (10) (zero) temperatures but we will take lots of warm clothes. I think it will be a birthday to remember!
