RICHARD CARAPAZ

A. Read the text and choose the sentence in PAST PERFECT.

Movistar rider Richard Carapaz became the first Ecuadorian to win the Giro d'Italia on Sunday, June 2, 2019, after coming through the final time-trial in Verona without suffering any injury, damage, or harm.

He had finished fourth in the Giro in 2018. The Ecuadorian became only the second South American to win the Giro. His Movistar teammate, Colombia's Nairo Quintana, was the first in 2014. "This is the biggest moment of my sporting life and it's hard to explain it. I just suffered from start to finish until I reached the arena in Verona," Carapaz told Eurosport. While Carapaz took the acclaim in front of a large contingent of fans from his homeland at the finish inside the Roman amphitheater at Verona Arena, he laid the platform for his success on the mountain slopes. There on the 14th stage, he delivered a superb win, and claimed the Maglia Rosa and emerged as a serious Grand Champion contender.
