Dear .....

I've got some great news! My school is to take part in a football tournament which will take place in North Greece in the last two weeks of April. I have been asked by the P.E teacher to captain the team. You know I love football and it would be the perfect chance to be seen by scouters. The problem is though, that I have final exams in May and the training and preparation will take up a lot of my time. Not to mention, missing a lot of school in April. I'm not sure if I should go. Do you think it's a good idea? I'd really like some advice.

Love

Alex
