Extreme schools

Chuck is 15 years old and goes to Barrow High School. Barrow is far in the north of Alaska, and in the winter there are two months when the sun never shines. It is also very cold.

It's not always easy, but Chuck usually gets to school. There aren't real roads, but the school bus has 4-wheel drive and snow chains. Chuck gets up early in the morning to catch it – it passes by his house at 7 am, so he gets up at 6. The school has high-speed Internet, a basketball court (where Chuck practises every day after school) and warm classrooms. There is also something not many schools have in the rest of the USA – a skating rink!

Chuck does all the usual subjects at school, but he also learns about the Inuit culture. These people have got a long history in Alaska. The city is very proud of its history and Chuck is proud to be part of it.
